A GREAT HUMBUG EXPOSED.

On our first page to-day will be found an account of the exposure of the most remarkable humbug of the day, if not of the present age—that of the pretended spiritualistic manifestations of "Katie King" in Philadelphia. The exposure is notable in itself, but it is rendered the more significant by occurring almost simultaneously with the appearance of an elaborate article, by Robert Dale Owen, in the Atlantic Monthly for January, giving a detailed report of his "prudence at these "seances," and citing in full faith the wonderful confirmations of his supernatural theories. As this has been one of the most successful deceptions ever attempted in this country, we will give a brief history of the facts.

Some time in May last wonderful reports reached us from London that a spiritual medium in that city, named Florence Cook, had succeeded in obtaining manifestations in which spirits of the departed became "materialized," and presented themselves bodily before a number of spectators, who were enabled to touch and hold conversation with these unearthly visitants. The principal appellation at these "seances" was that of a beautiful young girl of about eighteen, who said her name was "Katie King," that she was the daughter of "John King," a pirate, and that she died one hundred years ago. A short time after the announcement of these manifestations, it was reported that the spirit of this same girl had appeared at the sittings of a Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, mediums in Philadelphia. The report soon spread throughout spiritualistic circles, and as spirits are not supposed to be subject to the limitations of space, the simultaneous manifestations at London and Philadelphia only imparted a zest to credulity. Mr. Owen received a letter from Dr. Child, a well-known Philadelphia physician, informing him of the marvel, and also that the "materialized" spirit had desired his presence. Mr. Owen says in his article—

"A startling summons, surely, if in very deed from a spirit! Was such an invitation ever before extended by a denizen of the next world to a mortal in this?"

He found the mediums established on the second floor of a small house in Ninth street, Philadelphia, occupying a parlor and bedroom, there being a music store directly beneath. The manifestations were made from a cabinet of black walnut seven feet wide and eight feet high, resting against the wall, with a door opening into the room and two apertures, five and six feet high respectively, shaded by black cloth. A door from the cabinet into the bed-room was boarded up as securely as to satisfy those inspecting it that no communication was possible. The exhibitions were conducted by lamplight shaded so as to enable those present to recognize faces. Mr. Owen testifies to "forty memorable sittings," and a writer in the Galaxy for December gave an elaborate account of the wonderful manifestations. It will be sufficient for our purpose to say that this girl repeatedly appeared, showing her face at the apertures, standing in the door of the cabinet, and frequently advancing into the room with the spectators, all the while conversing freely, allowing them to take her hand, touch her hair, and taking from them numerous gifts to be borne by her to departed friends. On several occasions the face of her father, the pirate, appeared with hers, and several other "materialized" forms were presented. The most notable of the latter was a beautiful Indian girl, who came but several times and said her name was "Saunteo." At the mention of her name a female spectator became very much agitated, as she said that "Saunteo" was the "controlling spirit" of an intimate friend of hers, a trance medium. There were also "luminous hands" which floated about in the air, and which would write with a pencil upon paper resting upon nothing. The figure of "Katie King" would fade gradually into mist, and as gradually reassume tangible shape, she would rise boldly from the floor, and on one occasion seemed to come up directly through the floor, although the store below was open, and frequented by customers.

Mr. Owen goes on with the most gullible placidity to relate the precautions and tests by which he convinced himself "that these phenomena were genuine." In the light of the subsequent exposé, there is something painfully ludicrous in Mr. Owen's story of this miraculous visitation. He says that Dr. Child examined her pulse, and "found its beats were distinct, about seventy-two a minute;" and, when putting a ring on her finger, he was amazed to "find the hand beautifully formed, was like that of a mortal woman, nearly of the same temperature as my own, and slightly moist." He gave her a chain, and when she disappeared she chain and ring went also; but on appearing next day she brought the chain back with a message from the "spirit land;" and Mr. Owen cannot tell

Where was that chain during the preceding twenty-four hours? One is lost in conjecture on such subjects.

During the later sittings neither of the mediums entered the cabinet, but the results were equally astonishing. Mr. Owen gave her a folded note with a pearl cross, and after retiring to the dark cabinet a few moments, she returned with the cross "shining as with phosphorescent lustre" and also holding the note still folded while repeating to him its contents. Without a thought of the "phosphorescence" Mr. Owen gravely asks: "How did she read that note?" And finding no trace of the cross after she disappeared he inquires: "Where was it?" Alas, for human credulity, the cross which Mr. Owen tried to follow in imagination to the realm of spirits was snugly stowed away at that girl's boarding-house in Philadelphia. On one occasion, "one of the circle (not a lady)" says Mr. Owen asked permission to kiss "Katie," when she instantly disappeared. On her return next day he says she had "such a look of weary sorrow, and of depression that I was moved almost to tears;" and she told him that she could not come out without assurance that her wishes should be respected:

"I want your promise," she added. "When you touch me, it gives me strength; but when others by with whom I have no sympathy, are suffered to approach indiscriminately, it wearies and exhausts me. I want you to promise that no such overture as that made last night shall be repeated. They forget that I am a spirit. They forget why I come to them at all."

He assured her that he would protect her as he would his own daughter and says: "Nothing more was needed that evening to call forth a hushed reverence such as is not often found even in church." He seems to have been particularly puzzled by material adornments of these spirits, remarking that a portion of "Saunteo's" raiment was "soft and rich as velvet;" and having cut a curl from "Katie's" head, he says:

After four months it has not melted away, and it is not distinguishable from human hair, though one seldom sees any so beautiful.

On another occasion he remarks with almost touching naivete:

I passed my left arm gently around her and sustained her left arm, just free from the elbow, in my right hand. To the touch her garments and her person were exactly like those of its earthly creature.

On this occasion, no one was present but Mr. Owen and the two mediums, and when she "vision" departed she turned to say: "Didn't we have a good time, Mr. Owen as I promised?" His emotions are thus expressed: "I questioned my consciousness. Had I held familiar converse with a creature who had already, perhaps, returned to her fellow-denizens of the skies?"

Having asked for a piece of her dress she replied: "I will try to materialize it so that it will keep," and after going in the cabinet she came out and, turning, pretended to cut a piece from her robe and also from her veil. The former, Mr. Owen found to be actually "like bishop's lawn," and the latter bore a striking resemblance to "Honiton lace." And the "astonishing" part of all was that two persons declared they saw the holes cut in the garments, and that in a few moments the fabrics became "whole again." Their statement as to the size of the holes differed essentially from the size of the pieces he received, but he could not doubt the veracity of these witnesses."

But it is needless to say, and indeed it would be almost cruel to quote further from the testimony of this thoroughly innocent victim of a monstrous imposture. Suffice it that he was so thoroughly convinced of the genuineness of these apparitions, as to present the record thereof in one of the leading magazines as proof that "spirit artists have made progress" so that they can "materialize" the form and vocal organs, and "give permanence to locks of hair," etc., so that they "remain in human possession tangible vouchers for the reality of spirit visitation."

And after all this we are told that this "materialized" spirit first erected the simplest form of a shroud investigation by giving evidence of a "dual breath," and that "next to her changes, buttered dual lungs became." THE FINANCIAL QUESTION CONSIDERED IN THE REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CAUCUS

At the caucus of Republican Senators to-day most of the time was consumed it is said in the consideration of the finance question, but having been made by the committee of seven on that subject through its chairman Senator Thurman The debate took a wide range but all who spoke expressed the opinion that something was necessary to be done and therefore it was the part of wise statesmanship for those present to harmonize their views if possible with the committee of eleven before they brought their report in The senators were divided in their views, seven being in favor of the report, and four against it but finally, on motion of one of the four a report was made unanimous and after being discussed was adopted by the caucus A bill so constituted will be reported at an early day to the Senate According to the information obtainable this bill provides for the resumption of specie payments on January 1st 1879, for free banking, for the retirement of 50 per cent of the amount of the new notis at bank notes issued, and also retire forty-six millions of fractional currency to be gradually withdrawn, and a fresh issue in denominations of from five to fifty cents to be issued in its place The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use the surplus coin in the Treasury on hand after the sum fixed for resumption to redeem the legal tender notes and if necessary to sell bonds for the same purpose if the amount of specie is not sufficient

LOUISIANA.

A FOURTH CONSTITUTION—THE PEOPLE BE COMING ORDERLY

NEW YORK Dec 19 The Herald's New Orleans despatch says that General Heron denies the report that the State militia is to be reorganized and that he is to take command A member of General Longstreet's command also contradicts the report The police will be reorganized simply as peace officers in the city and not to raid all over the State It is said that the Returning Board have recovered from their scare now that they find that the people are orderly and disposed to suffer more rather than give cause for the interference of President Grant in the organization of the Legislature, which is evidently the last hope of the Radicals.

CASES BEFORE THE PROBATE COURTS—A DECISION BY JUDGE MCKEAN

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 18. Abonl one year ago Nicholas Landers killed Geo. Sidley at Ophir, Utah. He was indicted and tried by the Probate Court and sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the Penitentiary. He was afterward held for trial by the District Court and the case was decided by Chief Justice McKean to-day. He says that the Probate Courts of Utah have not, and never had, jurisdiction in criminal cases. Nevertheless, judgments were rendered by them and executed, and the time to appeal from which having expired prior to the 3d of June, 1874, were declared valid by act of Congress Such judgment when pleaded in abatement will be treated by this Court as a bar to prosecution for the same offence in this Court since the passage of said act of Congress. This Court will not inquire whether it was competent for Congress to validate a void judgment. As defendant did not appeal the former judgment is therefore a bar against the present indictment

THE ROSS CHILD

ANOTHER CONJECTURE AS TO THE FATE OF THE BOY

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 It is now thought by some that the body of a child found in Newark Bay on the 17th of November, was that of Charlie Ross, as it was there that the sloop of Mosher was anchored frequently during the fall.

NEW YORK STATE

FIRE RAGING IN THE STATE PRISON

AUBURN N Y Dec 19, There is a fire in the State Prison It is in the shop occupied by the collar company and is raging furiously but probably will be confined to the shop The whole fire department is at work

THE BUILDINGS SAVED—AN ORGANIZED ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

The fire in the collar shop was extinguished after considerable damage to the building Another fire was started in the tailors' shop which was extinguished without much damage This was no sooner put than one was found in the blacksmith shop, which was also put out without much damage Organized attempts to escape evidently being made by convicts to burn the prison and make their escape in a body The underwriters of this city have already discussed the propriety of cancelling all policies on the shops in the prison The insurance on supply of water the great efficiency of the fire department and the coöperation of Mayor Cary have the effect of keeping the rate of premium down to a low figure Should the prison proved the loss of a large amount of property today No fire or attempt to have been discovered

MASSACHUSETTS

ANOTHER DAM AT HAVERHILL GIVES AWAY

SPRINGFIELD Dec. 19 A special to the Union from Haverhill states that the dam of Hayden & Co's Co, broke away near the centre, two-thirds of the structure being swept away A large body of water covered with ice ten inches thick rushed down the stream with a crashing noise similar to that made by the flood of last May down the same pathway

LOSS OF LIFE

There were 75 or more children on the pond skating all of whom it is thought were saved, but it is feared that children on the ponds below may not have had warning in time to escape

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE DAM

The new dam was built to replace the one swept away last May and was but recently completed It was built by John Doherty & Son of Holyoke and was 110 feet long 12 feet wide at the base, six feet at the top and cost about $6 000 It was built of granite imbedded in the solid rock and furnished with a coping of cut granite each stone of which was 6 feet long and 12 inches thick The water side of the dam was faced with cement which also lined the end was flanked by heavy parapet walls 15 feet high The bulkhead was of granite and was 1 foot high and set flat with the dam The dam afforded twenty feet head of water, seven feet more than was given by the old dam, and the structure has been supposed to be a very superior piece of workmanship

A HEAVY LOSS TO HAYDEN GERE & CO

The rebuilding, of the works of Hayden Gere & Co, that progress daily as far as the completion of a new foundry building 102 by 40 feet and two stories high, while that will on the east house and pattern shop were well advanced The main building of the works which is planned to be 330 feet long and three stories high was to be erected In the spring but it is feared by the inhabitants of that village that the fire will be discouraged by this second disaster and give up the building project there.

LATER—THE FLOOD STAYED—NO LIVES LOST

A later despatch from Haydenville says that there was no loss of life above or below the broken dam. The cotton mill situated about half a mile below Hayden Gere & Co's held the water and the ice from the pond of the latter, and prevented any further destruction The cotton mill dam is one of the strongest on the river It was one only partially carried away by the May flood and has been thoroughly repaired

BUCKSPORT'S ACHIEVEMENT

Exit the Stage-Coach—Enter the Iron Horse.

A PLEASANT TOWN, AND ITS NEW CONNEXION WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD—FULL DETAILS OF THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE BUCKSPORT AND BANGOR RAILROAD

Heretofore it has been said that Bucksport was eighteen miles from anywhere, to-day Bucksport is but one hour from Bangor, the common business interests of the two towns having been bound together in the iron bands of the Bucksport and Bangor railroad, while the company has been echoed and re-echoed along the eastern shore of the Penobscot by the locomotive's shriek

Bucksport is one of the most thriving as well as one of the most pleasant, towns in the State, while its business men are wide awake, enterprising and energetic. Having decided that their future progress and prosperity demanded a railway outlet they naturally selected Bangor, and fighting against obstacles that would have entirely disheartened most towns of its size have conducted their enterprise to successful completion

THE RAILROAD BRIDGE

The road crosses the Penobscot river at Bangor on a Howe truss bridge of six spans including the draw, and the span over the tracks of the European and North American is 150 feet. It is supported by seven piers and two abutments containing 1000 cubic yards of masonry, for which stone from the Frankfort and Searsport quarries was used It was built by the Messrs Hunt and Hunt, in the rough and substantial manner in which bridges do to-day and dowelled The track way is twenty four feet above high water mark The framing was done under charge of Alexander Hastings master builder, and Capt Daniel Curtis The bridge is one of the best associated pieces of railroad bridge in the State It was done under the supervision of L H Hunt, Esq civil engineer of the city and is but another example of his excellent knowledge of practical construction, improved by study and experience

THE ROAD

Work was commenced on the road a year ago last spring, $50 000 having been subscribed and paid for its construction Messrs Walker Emerson of Mr B F Walker, was elected The cars were varied and interesting including short and dresses and refreshments Willie Marden was the fortunate boy who is to receive $5 worth of books on Christmas, for having been the largest number of boys to attend Club since the last previous meeting

THE BLESSED DAY

BY M M P

What shall little children sing
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day?
What shall little children bring
On Christmas Day in the morning?

This shall the children bring
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day,
Love and joy for Christ our King
On Christmas Day in the morning!

What shall little children sing
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day?
What shall little children sing
On Christmas Day in the morning?

This grand old carol shall they sing
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
With all their hearts, their offering bring
On Christmas Day in the morning.—

For Christ was born in Bethlehem
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
For Christ was born in Bethlehem
On Christmas Day in the morning

And all the bells on earth shall ring
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
And all the bells on earth shall ring
On Christmas Day in the morning

And all the angels in heaven shall sing
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
And all the angels in heaven shall sing
On Christmas Day in the morning

And all the souls on earth shall sing
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
And all the souls on earth shall sing
On Christmas Day in the morning

Then let us all rejoice amain
On Christmas Day on Christmas Day
Then let us all rejoice amain
On Christmas Day in the morning!

—St. Nicholas for January.

A CHRISTMAS SLEIGH RIDE.

Mr Frank R. Stockton was out late one Christmas Eve when he fell in with an old gentleman who invited him into his sleigh What then happened he tells in Scribner for January

The old gentleman pulled a bag from behind the seat, and tearing it on his lap proceeded to show the some of the contents.

They seem to be old fashioned toys I remarked.

"Yes, he said with a sigh these new fangled affairs are of no use to me You couldn't get a paddle-wheel steamer, with a real engine, into a common stocking You'd see in the toe of the stocking And there's scarcely a girl in the land who wears a stocking large enough to hold a doll's trunk, furnished with all its dresses, bonnets, and all the necessary undergarments No! I have to confine myself to such things as bear a proper proportion to the feet and legs of children — There is one thing said he, turning upon me his still jolly old countenance, that has had more influence than anything else in causing the general indifference with which I am now regarded

And what is that?" I asked

Furnace-heat, he said What sensible person could or young could expect a fellow with a bag on his back to come down a flue and through an iron register? It would be absurd to try to make even a child believe that a thing of the sort is possible.'

And then he put away his bag and took the lines again, with a look of resignation

"It's all wrong, said I, all wrong The old way was the best.'

"No doubt of it, he said he, 'but what can you expect? Every thing old is changing, changing constantly

How about old furniture? I asked — That seems popular enough."

That's changing too he answered — Coming down out of the garret into the parlor As to people in general I scarcely know what to make of them There will soon be no such thing as Christmas. Horne boasts it is to be, gretted every year and New Year's Day is hastily passed The jolly old Christmas family ties are almost forgotten, and the young men are satisfied to trot around on New Year's day and nibble cake and drink wine at a hundred different places walk the same old smile at a hundred different men—some friends and some strangers—till the day is done What's all that to the grand old times we used to have? But as I said before who can you expect? There are men now who go so far as to assert that matter constitutes for him itself the promise and potency of every form of life! Would you expect the children of such persons to hang up their stockings?

No I said I don't think I would "

Of course no said he with considerable asperity for so fossilized an old fellow it would be entirely out of keeping, Go long there! Get up Tiger Why I tell you sir, there are not half a dozen houses in all that town, built as that I could get into If you do manage to get down a chimney you're pretty sure to land in a kitchen fire or in a cellar furnace! I hate furnaces! They're the invention of the Devil sir and pure air and pure Christianity are dying out with the open fireplace Go long you Blixen! I expect this next thing will be that the children will leave off their stockings altogether

I saw that he was getting excited and I did not wish to say anything that would further irritate him so I simply remarked that he seemed to be driving faster

As I said he whipping, his reluctance into a sure gallop Let's going to a friend's farm house that stands down yonder in the valley There the people know how to live There are great open fire-places with grand old wood fires in them—blazing, burning, big back logs and merry crackling blazes Hi there, Vixen! There the children have been playing wild rollicking games all this evening and there they have hung their stockings by the big fire-place in the kitchen! Go long, there I tell hi!

The old man was now in a glow of delight. He cracked his whip and shouted to his reindeer The gallant creatures seemed to catch his enthusiasm and they dashed over the snow at the top of their speed

Isn't this rather—rapid" said I as I clung fast to the side of the sleigh

"Oh yes he shouted, this is the right sort of driving This is the way people go when they want to get there Hi! Hi! Away with you you rascals! There's the house right before us!

Are you going to drive—on top? said I as I got breath lost from the rapidity of the ride

Certainly! he cried 'But you needn't be afraid I just take that shed first then up to the roof of the kitchen, and then, clip! and away to the top of the house."

At this I rose and stood up in the sleigh, cracking his whip and shouting to his steeds at the top of his voice

The reindeer dashed forward like mad—they reached the shed they bounded up, the runner struck the eaves with a bang and out I shot into a snow bank —'Every man Scribner for January
